In the Montgomery Local Schools there are many families whose names have become familiar because their children have kept the name going. Such a family is the Emit Jennings of Bradner.

In the next few pages the Jennings will show us how such a family spends its day in the Montgomery Local Schools.

Before we start the story here is the cast of characters: Tommy, first grade; Calvin, third grade; Everett, fifth grade; Darlene, eighth grade; Karis Kay, freshman and Anna Mae, senior.

The Jennings are active in school organizations. This is especially true of the older three whose main interest is music.

All six of the Jennings leave their Bradner home . . .

Anna Mae doles out the lunch money to her brothers.

Of course school must start and here is Tommy in class.

Meanwhile sister Darlene, a junior high student, also has to study.

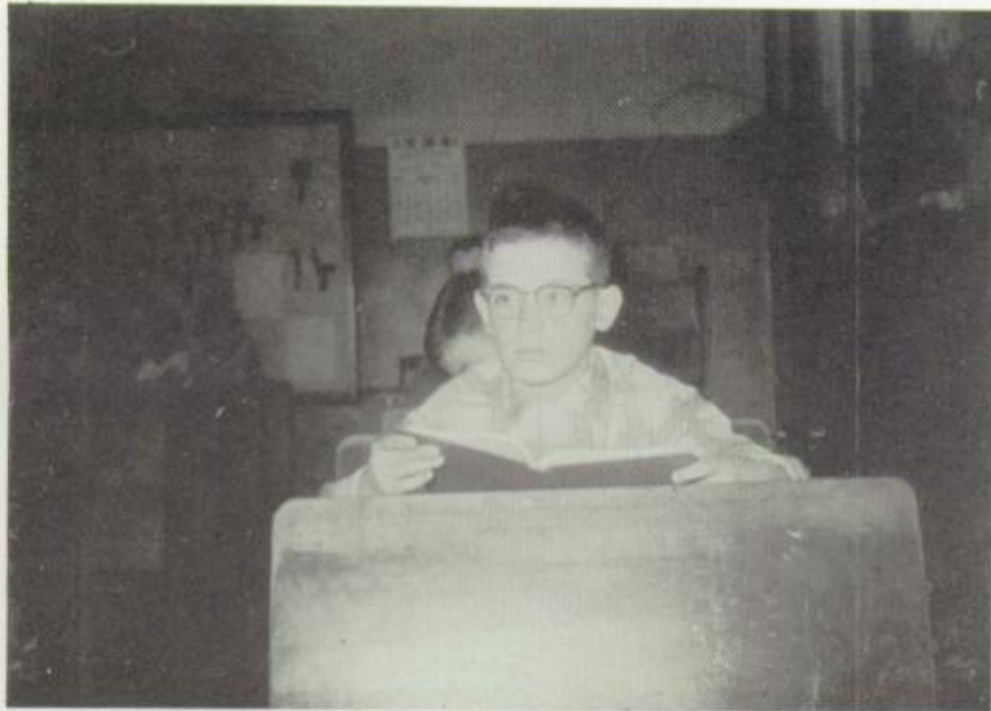

Darlene works at noon in the cafeteria to round out a busy day.

The boys, Tommy, Everett, and Calvin, look back to tell the girls to hurry.

Here the group turns into the Bradner building where the younger four attend grade school and junior high.

Older brother Everett takes time to look up from his studying.

Look! It's lunch time already.

After leaving their brothers and sister at the Bradner building, Anna Mae and Karis Kay board the bus for the ride to the high school in the Wayne building.

After arriving Karis puts her coat away and gets her books for those first classes.

English class doesn't seem to bother Karis.

Early in her Freshman year, Karis had to take part in the Freshmen Initiation.

Senior Anna Mae looks thoughtful in history class, studies a chemistry experiment,

and chats before gym class.

After a busy day at school, Anna Mae sings a solo with the high school choir at one of their concerts.

July 26, 1957

Just a quiet lad who meant it when he smiled,
Whose greeting touched and turned away one's care;
Whose presence, somehow, tuned a person's heartstrings,
A friend to all yet not a friend to spare.
Why seek in vain the object of one's mission?
Why see no goal, no prize beyond the strife?
In traveling on he left a brighter pathway—
Who climbs its grade must live a fuller life!
